Aiming High

As they move on to becoming Year 4s we will praise effort by:

- Every day we are watching our Secret Student! Hard work, kindness and success are rewarded with a smiley face and a class point. As a class we will be aiming for a special treat if we achieve our target!
- House points: are given to reward hard work and effort.
- For amazing work, effort or kindness the children may be sent to Mr Bottomley for a Headteacher's Award.
- Values certificates
- Good to be Green Smiley Face- everyone has a peg around the face, but if there is undesirable behaviour a verbal warning is given and if it does not improve the child's peg is removed and they are spoken with and expectation to improve. If they do, the peg returns to the smiley face. If not there is a consequence, this means they will miss playtime to fill in a reflection form. More information is in the school's Behaviour Policy.

Reading: the next steps

Reading with confidence and analysing what they have read.

Listening to your child read is the most important thing you can do to help.

Children should still read at home at least 4 times a week.

In class:

- We will be having regular guided reading sessions. Helping all children become independent readers, by giving support to those in need.
- Following up our reading with response activities to develop deeper thinking and reflection.
- Looking at and reading a range of book genres.
- Where needed, individual reading.

Bookmarks

We are using bookmarks for children to record what they have read. We keep these to keep track of reading activity.

- Children will write down the page number as they read. Once a book/bookmark is finished, they hand it in. The teacher can then monitor what they are reading, how much they are reading and ask questions about what they read. We also have sheets to monitor this if they get lost.
- If you wish, you can initial their bookmarks so we can see you're hearing your child read at home and/or spoken to them about what they're reading.
- For those children that are on the reading scheme, they may have a reading log to help monitor their reading as they get through more books.
- If you would like a longer discussion or to let us know anything about your child's reading, please send us a quick email or chat to us.

English: the next steps

- Write independently in a way that interests your reader.
- Use a range of skills suitable for that form of writing.
- Use correct and increasingly complex punctuation.
- Spell a range of words correctly.
- Homework: Daily spelling practice with a list of words that will be tested each Monday.

Maths: extending upwards

Helping your child learn and practise their times tables using TTRockstars or other games is really important for their maths development.

In Year 4 there will be a national times table test in Summer 2027.
